Beatriz represents companies in complex civil and environmental litigation matters in various state and federal courts. She has represented clients in environmental claims including: CERCLA (natural resource damages, cost recovery and contribution claims), toxic tort cases, maritime environmental civil and criminal matters as well as environmental indemnification actions.

Her recent work has involved litigation in various jurisdictions related to the release of a pollutant into the environment in circumstances involving allegations of injury to human health and the environment, as well as natural resources. In support of this natural resource damages litigation, Beatriz developed and implemented litigation strategies, managed the selection, preparation, development, deposition, and Daubert challenges of scores of experts in every environmental specialty, including: marine biology, hydrogeology, toxicology, geochemistry, natural resource economics, environmental toxicology, and industrial standards of care. Other recent work includes civil litigation involving an environmental indemnification claim related to the transfer of an industrial property.

Before joining éClat Law, Beatriz was a shareholder of Darmody Carta P.A., Special Counsel with Foley & Lardner LLP, and an associate with Williams, Reed, Weinstein, Schifino and Mangione, P.A.
